† via Shanghai.

The Race hall took place last night at the Club. The band of the 9th was ranged round the balustrade of the staircase, the decorations were very tasteful and the dancing kept up with great animation.

It seems that poor M. O'MAHONEY who died the other day was a victim of hydrophobia, brought on by the bite of a dog—belonging we are told to M. VAUCHER. A soldier of the ninth has since been killed by a bite from the same dog. He was bitten on Thursday and died the same evening. A third person—another soldier has also been bitten, though not fatally in this case so far as we hear. Comment on such facts is altogether superfluous.

THE Hongkong, a Bordeaux coolie ship, left Whampoa for Havanna a few days ago, and has been seized by the emigrants. The incidents of the Pride of the Ganges case, seem to have been closely imitated. The Captain has been murdered, and seven of the crew are still in the hands of the Chinese. The news of the seizure was brought to the French consulate yesterday, by the French vice consul of Macao, to which port ten men of the Hongkong's crew, who succeeded in making their escape, proceeded in one of the ship's boats. They arrived at two o'clock on Thursday afternoon, and reported the details of the mutiny. The ship left the river a few days ago with 360 coolies on board, under the command of Captain DUVAL. Although nothing occurred which raised any suspicion of the intention of the emigrants, they suddenly rose on the afternoon of Wednesday. The captain was killed at once by a blow with a hatchet, and the crew fled for protection to the cabin where they defended themselves as long as their ammunition lasted. At last the Chinese by pretending to surrender, induced them to come out of their retreat. The coolies profited by this opportunity to possess themselves of weapons, and the fight continued. Seeing that they were overpowered, those of the crew, who were able, succeeded in launching one of the boats and escaped. The seven others who were all more or less wounded, remain in the hands of the Chinese. Amongst them are the first and second mates.

The Governor of Macao, to whom the French vice-consul at once applied, had no gunboat at his disposal to send in search of the mutineers, but promised to furnish military assistance if a steamer could be obtained by other means. This however could not be done, and yesterday morning the vice-consul came over in the White Cloud, and laid the whole case before M. du CHESNE. He of course immediately visited Admiral KING, and obtained a promise that a gunboat should be dispatched as soon as possible in pursuit of the captured ship.

In the London and China Express may be read some interesting statements founded apparently, on intuition. Sir R. ALCOCK, it is said, no sooner arrived in China than "the colonists at Hongkong and the English residents at Shanghai," availed themselves of the opportunity to lay before him "matters of public interests for the further development" of British relations in China. We do not know of any incidents to which the writer can allude, except the interview with the railway deputation, but he goes on to deal particularly with this subject, so that it would appear as if some other communications passed between the colonists and Sir RUTHERFORD. The general assertion is what French journalists call "inexact." Like Tennyson's Northern Farmer, we

"—wahnt selly men be liars, thot summun
sed it is sinfu'."

But the words used in the China-Express, illustrate an objectionable habit which some people have of amplifying a scrap of information so as to make it look like a great deal, without perceiving that the additions they make to it are really untruths. A morsel of truth is thought strong enough to buttress up any invention which can be made to lean against it. In the same page of the Express we read:—

"The sudden dismissal of Mr. HART, the Inspector General of Customs, without any ostensible cause is an instance of the caprice of a despotic government, which we are quite at a loss to account for."

For the origin of this statement most people will, we think, be quite at a loss to account. Here no direct assertion is made, but the misstatement of someone who does not appear, is accepted with much confiding simplicity. In another sentence however (also on the same unfortunate page which has been made to say so many foolish things), a statement is made which is evidently baseless. "From Peking" it is said, "we hear that Sir R. ALCOCK has arrived at a critical period, &c." The paper in which this appears is dated January 10, at which time, it is quite impossible that the news of Sir R. ALCOCK's arrival at Peking could have reached England at all. A certain amount of error is to be tolerated and forgiven to newspapers struggling often with much difficulty in the pursuit of facts, asking like jesting Pilate "what is truth," though unlike him they frequently wait for an answer with infinite patience in vain. Still a certain amount of mendacious nimbus in rebus may be fairly demanded by a long suffering public, and a canard, a thumping exaggeration, and a direct misstatement in the compass of two dozen consecutive lines, are worse injuries than the most Christian reader can be rightfully called upon to bear.

LOOKING at the news that has been received from Madrid, without reference to the recent course of Spanish politics, it would be difficult to make out the purpose and prospects of the insurgents. The revolt of two regiments is an event which could not spring from a political cause in any country but Spain. Mutinies in the English army or navy have always been brought about, in the rare cases in which they have assumed any serious proportions, by internal grievances, and it is difficult to imagine the "Horse Guards Green" or the "onty-onth," throwing off their allegiance to Her Majesty with the view of obtaining a reduction of the franchise, or the abolition of church rates. In Spain, however, ever since the Carlist war military outbreaks have continually taken place with no purpose beyond the attainment of an immediate political object. In fact, there have been few ministerial changes in the cabinet of Madrid, since the accession of Isabella II, which have not been brought about by a mutiny in the army. It would seem as if the civil wars of the Peninsular have brought about a state of public opinion, in which the direct operation of arms is recognised as the only mode of influencing the current of events. In 1838 while the Carlist war was still going on, the Queen Regent's government was in fact nothing more than a coalition of generals, favorable to her daughter's cause, and so helpless in relation to its supporters, that commanders in different provinces used to appropriate local revenues to the payment of their troops instead of permitting it to pass into the central treasury. When in 1840 the Queen Regent found her position no longer tenable, ESPARTERO, who had commanded in chief on the Christino side, was called to the direction of affairs, and the government of Spain has been directed by a soldier ever since. As a natural consequence, ministerial crises have taken the form of military pronunciamentos, and cabinets have so often been set up or overturned by dragoons, that the Spanish army must have come to fancy itself entrusted with some power under the constitution to regulate the appointment of the Queen's advisers. O'DONNELL himself the present head of the government (Duke of TETUAN since the war in Morocco) is the creature of a military revolt. In 1854, (ESPARTERO having been in the interval since '40 an exile, in power, and again en retraite,) O'DONNELL accomplished his famous insurrection at Madrid. With the help of a cavalry general, who brought him a force of 2000 dragoons, he found himself at the head of a respectable force, and after a severe though indecisive engagement with the loyal troops, established his head quarters at Aranjuez, a town on the Tagus about thirty miles south of Madrid, which has been again, according to the recent news, made the scene of an outbreak. From here, he issued a proclamation declaring his object to be the dismissal of the then existing ministry, and the reestablishment of the constitution of 1837. This announcement procured him so much support, that the QUEEN was forced to make terms and establish ESPARTERO at the head of a new government which included O'DONNELL. In 1856 O'DONNELL came to the head of affairs himself, though soon compelled to resign in favour of NARVAEZ, only having recovered office very recently.

General PRIM who is said to be the leader and instigator of the present rising, is one of the most popular generals of the Spanish army, having distinguished himself so greatly during the war in Morocco, that when the troops made their triumphal entry into Madrid at the conclusion of peace, it was on him more even than on O'DONNELL, who had commanded in chief, that the applause of the crowd was bestowed. It is easy to imagine, therefore that without having any deep designs against the crown, he has attempted to promote his political interests in the manner which the recent history of Spain has almost sanctioned. The news which has been received is so meagre, that we cannot as yet reach a clear perception of the programme, to which PRIM has declared his adherence. It is on his programme more than on the military feats with which he may inaugurate its rising that his chances of success depend. O'DONNELL in 1854 although not decisively defeated had at one time to retreat before the ministerial troops as the insurgents of Aranjuez and Ocana are retreating now before General ZABALA the Minister of Marine. They might have to fly for a while to the mountains and yet be ultimately be successful, but this could only be if the public sympathies were strongly roused against the existing government. This is not the case that we know of, although Queen ISABELLA herself has incurred a good deal of unpopularity of late. O'DONNELL has always been looked on as a liberal minister. It was through his influence that the Spanish court recognised the Kingdom of Italy and abandoned the war in St. Domingo in favor of an economical policy. Under his auspices the Spanish fleet has been earning a little cheap (though somewhat dirty) glory on the Chilian coast, and even if PRIM is, as he is said to be, a member of the Progressista party, it seems hardly probable that the Spaniards are generally so very ripe for advancement as to give him efficient support against a minister, who, as he came to power himself by means of a military revolt, is likely to go upon sound principles in suppressing a new one. When the last news left Madrid it did not appear that there were altogether more than 900 men in arms against the government, and these were all in retreat. Though the capital has been pronounced in a state of seige, that of course does not mean that it is invested by the rebels. The proclamation of martial law was a precautionary measure from the inconveniences of which late letters state that the town would in a few days be relieved.

(From our own Correspondent)

PARIS, 10th January, 1866.

The great event of the moment is the situation of Spain, on the 25th of December a military conspiracy was discovered in Malaga. What gives it some importance is the present state of the country. We remember that in 1860 the socialists were strong enough to enlist 20,000 men in Andalusia who marched upon Loaira, of which they remained in possession for several days. We now learn that the whole army is disaffected. The moderados are divided amongst themselves, but were it not for the opposition of the Clerical party and the favorites of the Escurial, the ministry might hope to last some time longer.

The financial state of the country is deplorable, the coupons which fell due on the 22d December will not be paid before the month of March. This delay is caused by the news from Peru which forces the government to keep money in hand to meet any eventuality.

News of the utmost importance has just reached us and a revolution which had been expected has just broken out. It has however come upon us like a sudden explosion, for the last telegrams were not of a character to make us believe that the outbreak was so near at hand; the latest dispatch is as follows:—

"Two cavalry regiments at Aranjuez and Ocana broke out in open rebellion on the 3d January; General Prim placed himself at the head of the insurgents who are trying to gain the mountains."

The telegraph which is in the hands of the government, announces that the movement will be suppressed and that it finds no sympathy amongst the population of the different provinces. General Zabala, first Lord of the Spanish admiralty, has been in pursuit of the insurgents; the troops now in Madrid have been ordered to remain within barr acks until further orders. We must wait for private dispatches, in order to be able to have a more correct idea of what is going on in the Peninsula, for there is no reliance to be placed on the telegrams sent to the papers by the Havas, agency, for as I have already mentioned, nothing unfavorable to the government is allowed to be forwarded. During the late disturbances in Madrid and Saragossa, we were unable to get any telegraphic despatches. If it is true as reported that General Prim has placed himself at the head of the movement, it is likely that the throne of Isabella is in no little peril, for the Marquis de los Castillios is not only a man of military genius, but a man of very great influence amongst the progressistes, who are it may be said the masters of the situation. The ministry is too weak to withstand so many attacks, for the Cortes cannot be said to represent the country and even those members who appear to wish to support the government, appear discouraged and disheartened

I need not tell you that politics in France have been quite put aside with the exception of the Spanish question for the last ten days, for all who have ever visited Paris know that the end of the old year and the beginning of the new are taken up with the purchase of new years gifts of every description toys, trinkets, bonbons and such like. The exchange of cards between friends is also one of the duties of society in France on the first day of the new year; formerly we were obliged to ruin ourselves in cab hire, in order to leave our cards in person, but the post office has now relieved its of this toil, for such it was, and we can now inundate our friends and relations with showers of paste board at a very low cost. As you may suppose the consequence has been a perfect stagnation in the political world, and the papers of the last few days have been stale, flat, and unprofitable. The French Government has just suffered a great loss in the death of Mons. Thuillier a man of great talent, and an orator of celebrity, had his domise taken place at any other time of the year, the public journals would have been full of details, concerning his life his age and who was likely to be his successor, but the public is too much taken up with the frivolities of the season even to express regret at the death of a man, who has rendered great services to the Government. The Emperor, as is the custom, received the members of the diplomatic corps in Paris on the first day of the year, and his speech in return for the congratulatory address of the ambassadors has attracted some attention; it is as follows.

"We are in the habit on the first day of every year, of looking back upon the past and casting a glance at the future. Happy if we can, as at the present time, congratulate ourselves on having avoided dangers, caused apprehensions to cease, and drawn nearer together the ties that unite different peoples and their kings. Happy I say, if the experience of past events permits us to augur for the world long days of peace and prosperity. I thank the diplomatic corps for their congratulations on new years day."

The Emperor's speech is less clear than that of President Johnson, however there is an air of peace about it which is in no way disagreeable. Napoleon III appeared to be particularly civil to M. Bigelow, U. S. envoy, and to the Austrian Ambassador; everything is noticed in a country where liberty is not at home. I think however that I shall be able to explain to you why the Emperor of the French paid so much attention to the Austrian envoy.

An alliance between France and Austria seems to be on the tapis for on Christmas day, his Imperial Highness the Prince Imperial received the order of St. Stephen from the Emperor of Austria, the motive of the French Government in drawing nearer to Vienna is, if I am rightly informed, as follows: You know that the withdrawal of the French troops from Mexico has become imperative, General Schofield having spoken in very plain terms, the French Government has been obliged to take some decided steps; and the Emperor of Austria, it is hoped, will be prevailed upon to come in aid of his brother. Unfortunately Austria is too much taken up with her affairs at home, to go and quarrel with the Yankees. Another scheme is talked of and it is said that Marshal Bazaine, convinced of the utter disencouragement of Maximilian, has decided upon acting as a kind of regenerator of Mexico, and that he will try to get himself named president of the Mexican Republic. All sort, though soon compelled to resign in favour of NARVAEZ, only having recovered office very recently.

General PRIM who is said to be the leader and instigator of the present rising, is one of the most popular generals of the Spanish army, having distinguished himself so greatly during the war in Morocco, that when the troops made their triumphal entry into Madrid at the conclusion of peace, it was on him more even than on O'DONNELL, who had commanded in chief, that the applause of the crowd was bestowed. The financial state of the country is deplorable, the coupons which fell due on the 22d December will not be paid before the month of March. This delay is caused by the news from Peru which forces the government to keep money in hand to meet any eventuality.

News of the utmost importance has just reached us and a revolution which had been expected has just broken out. It has however come upon us like a sudden explosion, for the last telegrams were not of a character to make us believe that the outbreak was so near at hand; the latest dispatch is as follows:—

His Excellency then dissolved the Council.

There remain upon the common jurors list four hundred and thirty names, and upon the special jurors fifty two names.

The Garrison Theatre.

The Officers of the Garrison gave another performance last evening in their pretty little Theatre. There were some changes in the programme but they did not mar the general success. Captain Roberts was, we regret to state, too indisposed to take the part originally cast for him, Faust, and Mr. Jephson kindly undertook it, his place as Wagner being supplied very ably by Mr. Clogstoun. Faust was produced as the first piece, and "Going to the race" as the second, in substitution of the "Sentinel." There was a full house; the audience appeared to be highly delighted; and the acting was unquestionably good. Mr. Jephson displayed great versatility of talent in the part of Faust, and showed, notwithstanding the disadvantage of hurried preparation, that he possesses the qualifications of a good and accomplished actor. We would rather have seen him as Wagner a part he has made peculiarly his own—not that we desire to depreciate the efforts of Mr. Clogstoun, who did uncommonly well, but the original cast seemed to us to be admirably distributed. Mephistopheles was excellent as before; Dame Martha, as amusing a "get up" as could be imagined; and Marguerite, as we have before stated, all that could be expected from a male lady. Poor Dame Martha met with an accident in "going down the hill" and consequently could not go down a second time, when called upon by the audience to do so.

"Going to the Races" is rather a slow affair. And, were it not for the admirable acting of Mr. Clarke, would have dragged heavily. He however, did all that his genuine talent and evident desire to please, could do for the part assigned him, and secured a success. In this piece a new member of the corps dramatique was introduced, Mr. Leighton, who shows qualities that promise a satisfactory result in a better part and one more suited to the vein of humour which he undoubtedly possesses.

We must say a word for the Orchestra. Five officers and one gentleman of the mercantile community take the principal parts and add in no small degree to the pleasure given by the performances.

High-handed Proceedings.

To the Editor of the "Daily Press."

HONGKONG, 23rd February, 1866.

SIR,—I should feel much obliged if you would make public in your columns the following circumstances, in connection with the compulsory alteration in the House Flag of Messrs. W. H. Adamson & Co. of Shanghai, advertised in this day's issue.

On Saturday the 17th instant, Vice-Admiral King sent on board my vessel the S. S. Yeddo requesting me to haul down the House Flag on account of a supposed similarity to the St. George's Cross used by men-of-war, such a step being extremely detrimental to the interests of my employers (as the Chinese solely recognise the vessel by the Flag). I waited on the Admiral pointed out the serious inconvenience caused by his act and offered to make any alterations, he might suggest which would not entirely destroy the character of the flag, he then called on every of his officers to state what flag they would take the Yeddo's for if they saw it at a ships mast head, and they with one accord said, "for a St. George's Cross Ensign, Sir," Admiral King then turned to me and said, "You see my officers are of the same opinion as myself, and you have no business to come here to argue the point with the Admiral, but have taken the officers word that you were wrong." I said, "I beg your pardon, Sir, I have a right, I am simply doing my duty, and again requested he would point out what alterations he required to which he rudely replied "I do not owe a d—n what alterations you make but you shall not hoist that one."

Now Sir without in any way denying the Jurisdiction of the Commander in chief on such matters. I would point out that his last remark was not at all courteous and that as the Flag has been flying unmolested for the last ten years and frequently in company with the late Admiral's the act does seem somewhat arbitrary.—I am, Sir,

Your obediently servant,

GEORGE F. LAITY.
Commander S. S "Yeddo."

WONG AYOW, who pleaded guilty on the 19th inst., to escape, was sentenced to three years penal servitude. In addition to his previous term.

LEE AYOK, was indicted upon two counts; the first for wounding with intent to disable, and the second for robbery. The prisoner pleaded not guilty.

We have already published the evidence in this case. The prisoner with a number of others, boarded a fishing boat lying in the harbour of Aberdeen, and boinguin in their turn attacked by same people, who came to the rescue, then sprang into the water and escaped by swimming. The prisoner was arrested upon his gaining the shore. These facts were testified to by Chang Me Hee the owner of the fishing boat, also his brother and his son, who were on board at the time, and by Andrew Anderson, a sailor belonging to H.M. S. Adventure, who captured the prisoner when landing.

The prisoner said he was quite innocent. He was also a fisherman, and the pirates had seized his boat as well; and he had saved himself by swimming ashore; which had caused him to be mistaken for a pirate.

The jury found a verdict of guilty on both the counts. The learned judge then told the prisoner that if he had committed the same offence upon the high seas he would have merited the punishment of death, as it was, the only difficulty was to fix upon a term of imprisonment; as he could send him to penal servitude for life. Taking however all the circumstances into consideration, he should sentence him to five years penal servitude, and to be three times publicly whipped, each time receiving fifty strokes.

WONG AKUM, was indicted with having on the 24th January last, stolen a child under fourteen years of age; a second count charged the prisoner with having administered a stupifying drug.

NEW AND MOST VALUABLE MEDICINES of GRIMAULT & Co., Chemists to H. I. H. Prince Napoleon, Paris. For hitherto intractable and incurable diseases.

No more Cod Liver Oil. Grimault's Syrup of Iodated Hard-Jodide. Prices 5 Fs. 5 Bottle, cash. Prepared by Grimault and Co., Chemists of Paris, according to the formula of the physicians of the Paris Hospitals, detailed in the printed directions, and with the approbation of several Academies. This Syrup is employed with the greatest success, in place of Cod Liver Oil, to which it is infinitely superior. It cures diseases of the chest, scrofula, lymphatic disorders, green sickness, muscular atony, and loss of appetite. It regenerates the constitution by purifying the blood, and is in a word, the most powerful curative known. It never fatigues the stomach and bowels, like Iodide of Potassium and the Iodide of Iron, and is administered with the greatest efficacy to young children, although it induces no diarrhoea, or obstruction of the glands. Dr. Chabrier of Saint Louis Hospital, Paris, recommends it particularly in diseases of the skin, to be taken with the Pills mentioned above. This Syrup of Iodated Horseradish is a capital adjunct to Dr. Lerras Phosphate of Iron.

No more Consumption. Grimault's Syrup of Hypophosphite of Lime. Price 5 Fs. a bottle, cash. This new Medicine is a powerful remedy in phthisis and other diseases of the lungs, promptly removing all the more serious symptoms. The coughs relieved, the night sweats cease, and the patient rapidly recovers his health.

No more dyspepsia, vomiting during pregnancy, and sea-sickness. Grimault & Co.'s Digestive Elixir of pepsine. Price 5 Fs. a bottle, cash. Pepsine is the gastric juice itself, or rather the active principle purified, which, digests food in the stomach. When from various causes, the supply of the digestive fluid is too small the inevitable consequences are, bad digestion, inflammation of the mucous coats of the stomach and bowels; and in females, actual derangement. The elixir of pepsine, sanctioned by the Paris Academy of medicine, speedily cures all such diseases, and prevents vomiting during pregnancy and while on sea-voyaging.

No more poverty of the blood, and pale complexion. Dr. Leras' Phosphate of Iron 3 Fs. a bottle, cash. This new, ferruginous medicine contains the elements of the blood and bones, and Iron in a liquid state. It is different from all hitherto offered to the public, is liquid, colourless and tasteless. It specially cures johlorosis, pains in the stomach, difficult digestion, dysmenorrhœa, anemia, and extraordinarily augmentes Corpulent of Iron, Iron reduced by Hydrogen, Lactate of Iron, the Pills of Protoiodoretts of Iron. The majority of the Academies of Medicine of Paris recommend the Phosphate of Iron, to Ladies of delicate constitution suffering from anemia, and all other persons fatiguing from over anxiety, nervous emotions, overwork, general debility, and poorness of blood. It is the only preparation which never causes constipation, and can be borne by the most delicate stomachs.

No more Copaiba and Cubebs, Grimault's Capsules and Liquid Extract of Matico Vegetable, 3 Fs. and 2 Fs. a bottle, cash. Pamphlet on the use of Matico and cure of the disease, 2 francs each, cash. Where all other Medicines have failed, the preparations will always effect a cure. These means rapid and extraordinary cure of severe recent and chronic cases of private disease. They are used in the Hospitals of Paris, by the celebrated Dr. Ricord, and are found greatly superior to all hitherto known mineral remedies and Copaiba and Cubebs. The Injection is used in recent, and quandaries in the more chronic cases.
